

UCSB California Alliance for Minority Participation (CAMP) Application Form for Summer Internship

Summer 2024 Program Information

June 17 – August 16

Sponsored by the Materials Research Laboratory (MRL) and the Louis Stokes Alliance for Minority Participation of the National Science Foundation

California Alliance for Minority Participation:

CAMP sponsors undergraduate science and engineering majors who are interested in pursuing a research experience. This internship program will fund UCSB undergraduates from under-represented groups in science, technology, engineering and mathematics for a 9-week summer research experience.

Interns will gain first-hand experience in scientific investigation in a dynamic, collaborative research environment. They will develop and complete a project with a UCSB faculty member and a lab mentor who will provide training and support.

In addition to research, the interns will also participate in weekly group meetings to develop oral presentation skills, attend special seminars and present their results at an end-of-summer poster session.

Getting started:

Because students must find a faculty sponsor and a project before formally applying, it is important to start early. If you already have a research interest in mind, visit with and talk to faculty members whose research interests you. Tell them you are going to be applying for the summer CAMP program and are looking for a faculty mentor to work with. If you are unsure what research interests you, visit faculty websites and read their research description to see who you might like to work with. In addition, contact the CAMP coordinator, Dr. Julie Standish, for guidance and help with finding a faculty mentor. Once you have chosen a faculty mentor, meet with them several times to discuss the project that you will be working on. You will need this information for your project proposal that you, with the help of your mentor, will write and submit with your application.
